Hundreds protest Zimmerman verdict

Dudley Square demonstration. Outrage sparked yesterday's protest against George Zimmerman's acquittal.

Hundreds of demonstrators descended on Dudley Square in Roxbury last night to speak out against the acquittal of George Zimmerman, a Florida man who admitted to shooting and killing unarmed black teenager Trayvon Martin in February 2012.

Zimmerman's attorney argued the 29-year-old acted in self-defense when he and Martin met inside a gated community in Sanford, Fla. They accuse civil rights advocates of wrongly injecting the issue of race, but scores of outraged Bostonians yesterday disagreed.

Boston activist Akunna Hussein Eneh was one of several organizers behind the event, dubbed "Justice for Trayvon Martin: Day of Decision Protest," which condemned the verdict and called for an end to racial oppression.

"I personally was expecting [the verdict] but it didn't hamper any anger I had. It was infuriating. It seemed like Trayvon was on trial, not George Zimmerman," she said. "The amount of anger was really what caused people to put this on."

Eneh said the event was planned before the verdict was announced late Saturday.

As the protest revved up, around 6:30 p.m., demonstrators chanted, "No justice, no peace," and held signs showing Martin's face.

Although the protest was expected to be peaceful, police sent additional officers to Dudley Square.

"We will not interfere with anyone exercising their First Amendment rights. We only request all participants do so responsibly," MBTA Lt. Det. Richard Sullivan said after learning of the demonstration.

No arrests or acts of violence were reported as of deadline yesterday.

Rallies also popped up in cities across the country, including New York City, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, as well as Sanford.

DNA. Alleged Boston Strangler's remains exhumed for testing

The body of Albert DeSalvo, the man notoriously referred to as the Boston Strangler, was exhumed from a Peabody cemetery Friday in the hopes of linking him to the murder of 19-year-old Mary Sullivan.

DeSalvo, who died in prison in 1973 while serving time for other crimes, confessed to the killings of 11 women between 1962 and 1964, but was never convicted.

His remains were taken to the Office of the Medical Examiner, located on Albany Street in Boston, where the process of extracting a DNA sample will be undertaken in an effort to definitively determine DeSalvo's connection to Sullivan.

Police and prosecutors said it is the first time they have had evidence linking him to her death.

The DNA profile extraction and comparison testing is expected to be completed later this week, according to Suffolk District Attorney spokesman Jake Wark.

"We're eager to receive the results. Once we have them, we expect to notify the victim's family first and then make them public," Wark said.

Prosecutors said they expect to finish presenting their case against alleged mob boss James "Whitey" Bulger within a week or 10 days.

A leader of the Winter Hill Gang, described as a sadistic killer who seemed to take pleasure in murders, was expected to testify against Bulger in the coming days.

Stephen "The Rifleman" Flemmi, who was sentenced to life in prison after agreeing to plead guilty to 10 murders, will testify against Bulger, prosecutors said.

Flemmi was Bulger's partner for decades as the duo allegedly shook down drug dealers for money, charged bookmakers to operate and brought an end to people's lives.

Originally expected to last well into September, the trial of Bulger seems to be moving along at a quicker pace than anticipated.

Not guiltyReaction to the verdict

The following is reaction to the verdict:

Mark O'Mara, Zimmerman's lead defense lawyer: "George Zimmerman was never guilty of anything except protecting himself in self-defense. This is a tragedy like any other loss of children. It's not one that George was responsible for."

Bernie de la Rionda, the chief prosecutor in the case, told reporters:

"Am I disappointed? Yes. Because I thought he was guilty. We live in a great country that has a great criminal justice system, it's not perfect, but it is the best in the world and we respect the jury's verdict."

Zimmerman defense lawyer Don West told reporters:

"I think the prosecution of George Zimmerman was disgraceful. I am gratified by the jury's verdict. As happy as I am for George Zimmerman, I'm thrilled that this jury kept this tragedy from becoming a travesty. For that we are eternally grateful. But it makes me sad too that it took this long under these circumstances to finally get justice." REUTERS

Jurors. The six women found Zimmerman not guilty of second-degree murder and manslaughter.

Cleared by a Florida jury, George Zimmerman walked free from criminal charges in the shooting death of unarmed black teenager Trayvon Martin but still faces public outrage, a possible civil suit and demands for a federal investigation.

Critics contend Zimmerman wrongly suspected 17-year-old Martin of being a criminal because he was black, making it a civil rights issue, while gun rights supporters saw Zimmerman as a persecuted hero who was exercising his Second Amendment right to bear arms.

Zimmerman's lawyers argued he acted in self-defense the night of Feb. 26, 2012, when he and Martin met inside a gated community in the Central Florida town of Sanford. They accuse civil rights advocates of wrongly injecting the issue of race.

"It was such a shame. The whole case nearly destroyed George from Day One. ... That they put a racism spin on this prosecution just hurt him very deeply," said John Donnelly, a close friend of Zimmerman who testified in the trial.

Civil rights leaders including Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton and Benjamin Jealous, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged the Justice Department to pursue federal civil rights charges against Zimmerman.

Jealous said Martin's family may bring a civil suit against Zimmerman but said federal criminal charges must be filed because evidence suggests race was a factor in the case.

He told CNN the black community is upset with a situation in which "our young people have to fear the bad guys and the good guys. The robbers and the cops and the self-appointed community watch volunteer who think that they're keeping folks safer."

Sharpton, who called the verdict "a slap in the face to the American people," cited the example of Rodney King, the man whose videotaped beating by Los Angeles police triggered rioting two decades ago after a state criminal trial found the police officers not guilty. Later, the Justice Department brought a federal case that resulted in the conviction of two officers.

The Justice Department has not commented on the case. REUTERS

Type 1 Diabetes?

Up to 70% of people with diabetes develop nerve damage.

Diabetes nerve damage can affect the legs, feet, or hands, causing numbness or loss of sensation. But since this nerve damage comes on gradually, many do not even realize they have a problem - until it leads to more serious complications.

Doctors at the Translational Pain Research Group at Brigham and Women's Hospital are conducting a research study of an investigational medication that may help reduce nerve damage for people with type 1 diabetes. If you choose to participate, you will receive a no cost, non-invasive test to help determine if you have early signs of diabetes nerve damage. You will also be compensated for time and travel.

Gov. Rick Perry defends Texas abortion measure

Heated issue. It's the latest effort by the GOP to impose new restrictions on late-term abortions.

Gov. Rick Perry yesterday defended a measure passed by the Texas Legislature to ban most abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy, saying states — not the federal government — should decide such matters and rejecting criticism that the law would shut down most of the state's abortion clinics.

The Republican-controlled legislature gave final passage to the measure on July 12 and sent it to the Republican governor to sign into law. Perry had called a second special session of the legislature to get the bill passed.

"Most people, I think, in this country — and in Texas, certainly — believe that six months is too late to be deciding whether or not these babies should be aborted or not. And we put the limit at five months in this bill," Perry told the CNN program "State of the Union."

"This gets back to the issue of, 'Should the states be able to make these decisions, or should we allow this big, cumbersome federal government to decide for all of us?'" Perry added.

The measure also would impose a series of new requirements on abortion clinics and doctors who perform abortions, mandating that doctors have admitting privileges at a hospital within 30 miles of the clinic and creating stricter guidelines for how doctors administer abortion-inducing drugs.

Secret. J.K. Rowling outed as writer of popular crime novel

J.K. Rowling posed as a retired military policeman to write a crime novel that has been hailed as one of the best debut detective stories in years.

Rowling wrote "The Cuckoo's Calling" under the pseudonym Robert Galbraith, pretending that it was the work of a married father of two and former undercover investigator.

Her cover was blown when the Sunday Times newspaper became suspicious that such an assured piece of writing could have been created by a first-time novelist. An investigation uncovered that Rowling was the real author.

"I had hoped to keep this secret a little longer, because being Robert Galbraith has been such a liberating experience," she said.

1 More on the tragic death of Cory Monteith

As you may have heard, "Glee" actor Cory Monteith was found dead in a Vancouver hotel room Saturday. Police and paramedics found no signs of foul play and the cause of death was not immediately apparent. British Columbia Chief Coroner Lisa Lapointe told reporters at a news conference. An autopsy is scheduled for today.

In a statement on the "Glee" Twitter page, the executive producers of the show and Fox said they were "deeply saddened by this tragic news."

"Cory was an exceptional talent and an even more exceptional person," the Twitter message said. "He was a true joy to work with and we will all miss him tremendously. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family and loved ones."

In April, Monteith "voluntarily admitted himself to a treatment facility," his representative told People magazine. The reason for the rehab stay was unspecified.

At the time, he said he had a "serious problem" and was using "anything and everything, as much as possible." Monteith spent his teen years attending up to 12 different schools, including alternative programs for troubled teens.

"I don't want kids to think it's OK to drop out of school and get high, and they'll be famous actors, too," he told Parade. "But for those people who might give up: Get real about what you want and go after it."

and drop six pounds by the end of summer.

Dilute your pasta

The trick: Cut half the calories by adding equal parts veggies and pasta (one cup pasta + one cup veggies) instead of two cups of noodles. The best part about this swap is that you get the same satisfying volume of food, just without all the extra calories.

The result: Do this three times a week and drop two pounds by the end of summer.

Make fro-yo at home

The trick: Instead of splurging on a medium frozen yogurt with two toppings (like granola and chocolate chips) every afternoon or evening, try sticking a non-fat, flavored yogurt in the freezer for 15 minutes (no longer or it gets too hard). Simply top your homemade fro-yo with a tablespoon of chocolate chips and dig in for a fraction of the calories.

The result: Do this every day and lose seven pounds by the end of summer.

DON'T BE A SUMMER SLOUCH

Summer is a great time to search for a job because most people are distracted by the weather and vacations. Instead of putting off your job search, put it into overdrive. For students, this is the best time to find an internship because there are more formal programs during summers than any other season. For professionals, this is the best time to stand out in the job pool because there are fewer résumés going out. Here are a few summer job-search tips:

Freelance

One of the best paths to employment is freelancing. If you are a graphic designer or programmer, for example, you can find freelance opportunities where you can leverage your skills to make money and create case studies of your work that can be used to prove your value to employers. I recommend using odesk.com and indeed.com to find freelance opportunities.

Horoscope

Cancer | June 21-July 22.

Just because you're anxious to wrap up an important matter, there's no reason to be rash or impulsive about it. Positive results should take precedence over speed.

Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.

When it comes to a business matter, don't tip your hand prematurely. Keep your aces close to the vest and don't play them until you're sure you can win.

Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.

If you're able, try to take a breather from your workday concerns and enjoy some of the wonderful things life has to offer. There's a lot more to life than just making money.

Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.

One of the quickest ways to wear out your welcome is to be dictatorial. You must be pleasant at all times, even as you're champing at the bit.

Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.

Your drive for accomplishment could cause you to manipulate your friends. Strive to keep a sense of perspective about what really counts in life.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.

Overly aggressive individuals could quickly turn you off. If this happens, you can avoid confrontation by responding in a strong manner.

Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.

Be careful not to respond too harshly in a public disagreement between you and your mate. You, as well as everyone else, could end up very embarrassed.

Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.

Although you might take the time to carefully analyze a situation, you could still make a bad judgment owing to a preconceived notion. Keep an open mind.

Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.

Even if asked, think twice before getting involved in a problem that a friend has brought on him- or herself. This situation could be more tangled than it appears.

Aries | March 21-April 20.

Even if you aren't the one who starts an argument with a friend, bite the bullet and do what you can to make amends, for the sake of the relationship.

Taurus | April 21-May 21.

A friend might be willing to help you out, but don't press your luck by demanding it. Ask nicely and be sure to show the proper gratitude.

Gemini | May 22-June 20.

Get out, look around and do a lot of comparison shopping before making a major purchase. If you don't, you'll regret your haste.

Justice served in trial of Zimmerman

In regard to the Zimmerman verdict, my heartfelt prayers go out to the parents of Trayvon Martin and George Zimmerman and his family, for there is no true winner. One is dead and the other will be in fear for his life. Our justice system is not perfect, but still is the best in the world. As for myself, I have served as a juror seven times in Queens County and know what a hard job it is to judge another human being. The question in this case for many: Was the verdict a travesty or was justice served? The bottom line was that six women labored diligently for 16 hours over Zimmerman's guilt as presented by the prosecution and found reasonable doubt. Justice was served under the rules of our justice system. Now, it is the time for healing all across America.

Divest from fossil fuels

"Divest," said President Obama in his recent address on climate change. Divest from what? From investments in companies producing fossil fuel. To prevent runaway climate catastrophe, these companies must keep most of their vast reserves in the ground, which won't happen without tremendous pressure. The divestment movement has spread to 350 colleges, and six have already committed to divest, as have many cities. Divestment from oil, coal, etc. can succeed once it gains enough momentum. Our future depends on turning the fossil fuel industry around.

The Pro Football Hall of Fame removed an award-winning photo of former Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez after complaints, according to The [Cleveland] Plain Dealer.

"In the spirit of good taste, we thought we'd take it down," Hall of Fame official Joe Horrigan told The Plain Dealer. The photo is from a 2010 game against the Packers and shows Hernandez high-stepping into the end zone. Sox impressive in season's first half MLB. Metro hands out its mid-season awards to the surprisingly award-worthy Red Sox.

The Red Sox enter the unofficial start of the second half of the season in first place in the American League East, and it certainly wasn't what many people envisioned going into the year coming off a 69-win season in 2012. Here are a few mid-season awards and one disappointment for the Sox so far in 2013:

Team MVP: Dustin Pedroia

There is no question this award deserves to go to Pedroia, who is having an MVP-caliber season. He's been outstanding both in the field, making spectacular plays at second base, and at the dish. As of this past weekend Pedroia was hitting .318 with 6 home runs and 55 RBIs. His average was fifth best in the American League and he's played in every game except one.

Offensive MVP: David Ortiz

Ortiz is having another exceptional season, even at age 37. As of Saturday the designated hitter was hitting .323 with 19 home runs and 65 RBIs. His RBI total is sixth in the AL, despite having missed much of April due to an Achilles injury. His ability to hit to all parts of the park has certainly paid off so far this season.

Pitching MVP: John Lackey

Coming off of Tommy John surgery, Lackey has been better than anyone could have imagined. Following his win Friday night, Lackey is now 7-6 on the season, but has pitched much better than his record would indicate as he has a 2.78 ERA, good for fourth in the AL. He's turned into the ace of the Red Sox rotation as of now with Jon Lester struggling and Clay Buchholz on the DL, not pitching in well over a month.

Biggest surprise: Daniel Nava

Although he may not be hitting at the clip he did at the beginning of the year, Nava has been arguably the biggest surprise on the roster. He's evolved into an every-day outfielder and the depth he's provided is a major reason why the Red Sox are in first place at the break. Going into Saturday, the switch-hitter was hitting .290 with 10 home runs and 52 RBIs.

Biggest disappointment: Jon Lester

With such a successful and surprising first half to the season for the Sox it's hard to complain, but Lester has not pitched anywhere near close to his capability. After starting the season 4-0 with a 3.11 ERA, Lester is now 8-6 with a 4.58 ERA at the break, struggling over the past two months or so. In 10 of his last 11 starts, the left-hander has allowed three runs or more. The Red Sox need Lester to get back on track for the second half of the year and their playoff push.

Rookie impresses in Sox loss

The Red Sox battled to extra innings in their final game before the MLB All-Star break yesterday, falling to Oakland 3-2 in 11 innings.

Oakland's Josh Donaldson singled home Chris Young in the 11th as Boston's Matt Thornton took the loss. The story on the day for the Sox was the effort by rookie Brandon Workman, who had a no-hitter through six innings against the A's. Workman pitched 6.1 impressive innings, allowing two earned runs on two hits.

WINNING THE 'RIGHT WAY' DOESN'T EXIST IN SPORTS

Subjectivity is complicated.

What food tastes good to me may be disgusting to you. That's a given. But, in other instances, a quality believed as fact may actually be subjective. For example, the way I see the color blue and the way it looks through your eyes is inherently different. We both know the color, but are aware the hue is slightly changed in its appearance from one person to the next.

While consuming commentary about Aaron Hernandez's murder trial, Alfonzo Dennard's arrest and the Tim Tebow signing, I've realized the way fans and media perceive "The Patriot Way" is just like the color blue — distinctively altered from person to person.

Look, I never believed in "The Patriot Way" as it was presented to us by — yup, you guessed it — the media (Hmm. The same folks taking unseemly pleasure in mocking the phrase in light of recent events). Robert Kraft is no Robin Hood. The Patriots weren't winning game after game as part of an altruistic mission for the poor. Nor is Bill Belichick a deity of sport. Truth is, the Pats have always taken chances on players in order to win football games.

That seemed silly to clarify. But retrospectively speaking, it does make complete sense — the timing for the adulation was perfect. The Patriots succeeded in an understated manner — predicated not on saying the wrong thing, but rather saying nothing at all. Meanwhile, Terrell Owens, Joey Porter, Chad Johnson (yeesh!), Rex Ryan and the rest of the NFL promulgated boisterous personas, ultimately making their downfalls easier to celebrate.

RYAN HADFIELD

SPORTS@METRO.US

But if forced to subscribe, to me "The Patriot Way" is — and always was — as much about Rodney Harrison, Randy Moss and Aqib Talib as it is about Troy Brown, Tom Terrific and other outstanding citizens to come through Patriot Place this last decade-plus. The utopian concept really just boils down to simple underlying themes: "Making the smart football play," "it is what it is," "do your job" and "mental toughness." In other words, the same platitudes the players fed the media.

And if there was a dark side to "The Patriot Way," like the aforementioned players with checkered pasts, SpyGate and a passive-aggressive penchant for running up the score, then fine. The Patriots are successful year after year, to the tune of seven AFC Championship Game appearances, five trips to the Super Bowl and three championships. I learned long before Odin Lloyd's body was found that winning the "right way" in professional sports doesn't exist. There's just winning.
